1	2021/12/01 9:51:28 AM EST	Danielle Jackson	PARENT	NO	The reason for changing the boundaries is distance, however my home is not closer by the way the crow flies or driving to Imperial Estates. We purchased this home 10 years ago with the intention of having our children attend a school and not being disrupted. I currently have a third grader who has been at Apollo his entire school career and we have built a community within the school and with other families at the school. Next year, I will have a Kindergartener starting at Apollo and then you will be moving him to a new school a year later. As a household with two working parents, we rely on the school bus system and are not afforded the opportunity or luxury to transport our children to and from school. I have learned that by effecting these changes, you will be disrupting a few dozen students who are already established at a very good school. With all the changes our kids have had to adapt to in the last two years, please do not add this to it. I understand kids are resilient but we are already struggling with some of these changes. Going to school and seeing friends and friendly staff faces they already know is literally the bright spot in my son's day!

Those children attend Apollo and have been since the beginning of their school career. Coming from an educational background I know how difficult it is for children to disrupt their routines once set. Plus the children have already been through so many changes these past 2 years and they need to have normalcy. The disruption of changing schools will leave them feeling unsafe and not secure. Not only do we have children, we also have family and friends that I trust to look after my upcoming kindergartener at Apollo. Apollo is also closer in proximity to us which is a huge plus. Please consider leaving the boundary lines the same.
4	2021/12/01 1:33:46 PM EST	Corinne	PARENT	NO	When buying our home we bought in a area that is zoned for Apollo. We have been a part of the Apollo family for 4 years now and to think that people, kids my kids have friended, will have to move after already having a difficult last two years-is not ok! Our kids attend Apollo because we also attended Apollo and decided that we wanted our children to go to the same school, so we purposely bought our home in an area zoned for Apollo. Before you rezone kids maybe stop and think about the kids that attend from out of zone who are lying about where they live just to attend Apollo! My daughter had 2 kids in her class that live in Cocoa that attended Apollo. That is not ok. Make the schools ask for better proof of addresses, anyone can change an address on a bill and print it off. These children who are truly zoned should not have to relocate cause of over crowding and allow the ones that aren't to stay!

How does this leave any options for working parents that rely on the bus?

So my children's education and school community is being disturbed based off a guess on how many kids might be attending a school in up to 10 years?

I've been told this only effects around 40 children. My home is in the middle of those boundary changes and is exactly the same distance from both schools by the way the crow flies and closer to Apollo driving.

To Whom It May Concern-

The reason for my email is to reject the proposed boundary changes.

As a parent of a future elementary student, I would like her to attend school with the children in her neighborhood. Coming from an educational background I know how difficult it is for children to disrupt their routines once set. Not only do we have children, we also have family and friends that I trust to look after my upcoming kindergarten at Apollo. Apollo is also closer in proximity to us which is a huge plus. Please consider leaving the boundary lines the same.

Thank you for your time.

Good morning,

Please reconsider making these changes to the boundaries and leave them as they currently are. The reason for changing the boundaries is distance, however my home is not closer by the way the crow flies or driving to Imperial Estates. We purchased this home 10 years ago with the intention of having our children attend a school and not being disrupted. I currently have a third grader who has been at Apollo his entire school career and we have built a community within the school and with other families at the school. Next year, I will have a Kindergartener starting at Apollo and then you will be moving him to a new school a year later. As a household with two working parents, we rely on the school bus system and are not afforded the opportunity or luxury to transport our children to and from school. I have learned that by effecting these changes, you will be disrupting a few dozen students who are already established at a very good school. With all the changes our kids have had to adapt to in the last two years, please do not add this to it. I understand kids are resilient, but we are already struggling with some of these changes. Going to school and seeing the friends and friendly staff faces they already know is literally the bright spot in my son's day!

Please consider leaving the boundaries how they are!

Respectfully,

Danielle Jackson
